

Australians not only gamble through casino games but also through buying a lottery ticket, betting on occasional races and even playing pokies.

- 70 percent of australians participated in some form of gambling and these gamblers lose around $21 000 each year. This is because a gambler could lose more than $1 500 in just one hour

Spreading from the word that one person enjoys it as entertainment, they bring friends to come with them so more and more people are dragged into it each day.

There are more teens in their early 20s found gambling at a casino. More and more teens are influenced to go to the casino for fun, which influences and sets an unworthy example for the children.

Gamblers impact the people around them, including their children (if they have any), their family, friends and fellow social-workers. Most gamblers loose connection with the people they are close with. Apparently men that gamble have a higher chance of having a divorce with their wife due of financial issues.
